Art Unit:

Claims 1-4 are presented for examination.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. § 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Lind et al.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Lind et al.

Applicants' attention is directed to Ex parte Novitski, 26 USPQ2d 1389 (BOPA 1993) illustrating anticipation resulting from inherent use, absent a haec verba recitation for such utility. In the instant application, as in Ex parte Novitski, supra, the claims are directed to preventing a malady or disease with old and well known compounds or compositions. It is now well settled law that administering compounds inherently possessing a protective utility anticipates claims directed to such protective use. Arguments that such protective use is not set forth haec verba are not probative. Prior use for the same utility clearly anticipates such utility, absent limitations distancing the proffered claims from the inherent anticipated use. Attempts to distance claims from anticipated utilities with specification limitations will not be successful. At page 1391, Ex parte Novitski, supra, the Board said "We are mindful that, during the patent examination, pending claims must be interpreted as broadly as their terms reasonably allow. In re Zletz, 893 F.2d 319, 13 USPQ2d 1320 (Fed. Cir. 1989). As often stated by the CCPA, "we will not read into claims in pending applications limitations from the specification." In re Winkhaus, 52 F.2d 637, 188 USPQ 219 (CCPA 1975)". In the instant application, Applicants' failure to distance the proffered claims from the anticipated prophylactic utility, renders such claims anticipated by the prior inherent use.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. § 103 which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Subject matter developed by another person, which qualifies as prior art only under subsection (f) or (g) of section 102 of this title, shall not preclude patentability under this section where the subject matter and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Lind et al.

Art Unit:

Lind et al teach the claimed compounds as old and well known in combination with various pharmaceutical carriers and excipients in a dosage form. These medicaments are taught as useful for treating viral infections generally, specifically HIV, as herein claimed. Claims 1-4, and the primary reference, differ not at all.

It is generally considered prima facie obvious to employ compounds taught as inhibiting viral replication as therapeutic for this same condition. The idea for employing them flows logically from their having been used individually in the prior art. As shown by the recited teachings, the instant claims define nothing more than the use of conventional anti-HIV agents.

Claim 4 specifically requires a pharmaceutical composition. The skilled artisan would have seen pharmaceutical compositions, and the administration of these compounds therapeutically as residing in the skilled artisan purview.

No claims are allowed.
